The New York Telephone Company did not fail to obey that part of the court order permitting it to charge the 25 per cent. increase on the bills dated April 1. BUT—

The New York Telephone Company did fail to obey that part of the court order requiring that "PRESERVE THIS BILL" should be printed in red ink across the face of every bill. It further failed to obey the stipulation each bill for local service should contain information that the rates charged are temporary and subject to litigation.

These instructions were included in the order of Justice Gavegan denying the city's application for a temporary injunction against the increase.

The new bills did, however, have a special line labelled "plus 25 per cent."

SAYS HE WILL MOVE TO DISBAR LAWYER

Justice Dike From Bench Censures
Attorney in Separation
Suit.

Justice Dike in the Queens Supreme Court today granted a separation to Mrs. Emma Helm, eighteen years old, of No. 11 shore street, Richmond Hill, from Frederick B. Helm of Woodhaven, whom she married on Oct. 14, 1918. Mrs. Helm testified that she was compelled to live in one room in a house owned by her husband's family; that there were no carpets on the floor; that she had to wear the cast-off clothing of her husband's sister and that she was given very little food.

Mrs. Helm got a separation last January. The case was retried on the motion of her husband's attorney, John P. Lamartin, who told the court that Helm's former attorney, Anthony Darmstadter, had neglected Helm's interests and had retained alimony payments given him to be paid to Mrs. Helm. Justice Dike asked for Darmstadter, but the latter was not in court. "I intend to see that Darmstadter is disbarred," Justice Dike said from the bench. "A censure is not enough. I will have him disbarred if I have to go before the Bar Committee myself."

Mrs. Helm was awarded $12 a week alimony.

VERDEROSAS REMANDED.

Husband and Wife Held in Mrs.
Troita's Murder.

Mrs. Caroline Verderosa, seventeen, and her husband, Luciano, were today in the Bridge Plaza Court remanded to Raymond Street Jail without bail for a hearing Friday on the charge they murdered Mrs. Verderosa's step-mother, Mrs. Catherine Troita. Mrs. Troita's body was found Saturday floating in a pond in Greenpoint. She had been missing since March 2.

The Verderosas stoutly deny any knowledge of the death of Mrs. Troita, who was strangled with a piece of sewing machine belt. Verderosa is a trucking contractor, who used the dumping ground in the vicinity of the pond.
